

COUNTRY FLAVOR

THE CRICKETS BREAK THROUGH TO HITDOM WITH THEIR COUNTRY SOUND AND THAT SWINGIN' ROCK-A-BILLY BEAT!

Goin' to a party? Why sure you are, aren't you? Well just about everybody loves to get together for some fun with their friends, don't they? Well then, let's go! I just happen to know a little place on the other side of town where there will be some real gone happenin's going 'round and 'round. Oh by the way, let's stop off for a couple of the latest records to add a little flavor. Who's hot these days? You pick 'em out. Oh, here's a good one by the "Beams" and that one by the "Sapphires" called, "The Stroller". What's that, one more? Alright, go ahead. By the way, what was that last disc you bought? The Crickets' sensational waxing called "Oh Boy"? Gee that's super; I just flip my lid for that Buddy Holly and his boys; they're great.

I remember when The Crickets released the first tune on the Brunswick label. It received immediate attention because, besides having a driving beat, it also had a few ingredients with a Country flavor to it which made it all the more appealing. I guess the rest of the nation felt the same way, because before long, it was number one in the country

Now they have "Oh Boy", another guitar-filled rocker headed straight for the top. Even looks like another million seller. My, my, such talent.

Looks as if everyone's enjoying the party, and The Crickets' record as well. I knew they'd make a big hit; they always do! They have put together a big chunk of talent with two types of music and come up with two smash hits. I know they'll have tremendous success with their next release and every one after that!
